Poor Eriesson -- A New York corres posdout of the Boston Journal, speaking of this unfortunate inventor, says :--

The Ericason experiment is at an end. The forention is conceded to be a failure, and poor Ericsson is a ruined man. He has spent all his fortune in building his caloric ship, and in the experiments he, liss made on the vessel. He has done indre; he has spent all his, wife's fortune, which is great, and she, too/is begga red. But the worst of all is that it has led to such recrimination and alienation that tirry have separated never to be united again perhaps, "Had he been successful, his name twould have been enrolled with that of Columbus, Newton, Fulton and other men of illustrious renown. But he has failed; he has lost his all; he has introduced rain into a orice loving and happy home, and the world coldly looks on and says, " I told you so. .....o.....

The Great Forgery Ogse.-Yesterday after we went to press, it was definitely ascertained that much "paper" which had lately been put upon many parties by Col. Lewis Littlepage Taylor, of Mississippi, for just thirteen days, and bringing news from some years past a clerk in the office of the First Comptroller of the Treasury was forged. On Saturday night last, suspicion was first aroused and the forger left the city clandestinely on Monday morning, it is supposed. It was only yesterday, however, that the fact of his crime was definitely aggerinused-

The forged paper consisted of many of his own notes; purporting to be; endorsed by the Hou, Jefterson Davis, and other paper purporting to be orders from clerks on the disbursing agents of the bureau to which each is attached, for their salariesdrawn in advance of the time when due.-It is supposed by some that the amount of his forgeries is as large as twenty or thirty thousand dollars. This wo do not believe, as alter due inquiry, we cannot bear of more than five thousand dollars, and not definitely of that amount. Twenty or thirty, persons, money lenders, clerks, messengers; and confiding friends are the victims -casentially confidence men. That is men of more confidence in human mature, than sagneity in business transactions. As they all appear to have a horror of being known as those thus "taken in and done for," we refrain from publishing the list.

The forger is very respectably connected in Mississippi," and has a family herowife and seven or eight children, for whom all among us feel deeply, indeed, as no one is more deservedly beloved than the lady in question in there circle of friends. He (Taylor) is a man of intelligence, and hereplore staod very fair, though always bearing the reputation of being heedless and thriftless in money matters. He looks to be from forty to furty-five years of age, about five feet fon or eleven inches high staut built, with florid complexion, blue eyes and thin brown hair, and wore on cloping from Washington, short whiskers. He is said to have been seen drunk in Baltimore on Monday evening last: Gambling is alleged as the cause of this crimes. It has brought many men of more firmness, promise, and orginal character than Lewis Littlepage Taylor, before him, to the commission of as bad deeds.

The untercom of the Secretary of War presented a luguirious scene shortly before noon to day, there being half a dozon of Taylor's victims seated around awaiting the apportunity to verify the endorsement of General Davis, if possible. Wounderstand that he pronounces all such paper bearing his name to be forged.

P. S. From what we learn before going to press, we shall not be surprised if Taylor's forgeries amount to, quite $15,000." Washington, Star.

The Bounty Land Act .- The Washington Union, after consulting the most reliahle sources of information obligingly placed at its disposal by the Commissioner of Pensions, feels satisfied that more than thirty-six millions of nores of public lands will be calted for under the bounty land act of the last session, leaving the United States still in possession of more than a thousand millions of acres to be wusted in future lavish extravagences. The number of applications in seven days from Morch 19 to March 25, inclusive, was 13, 400. Each letter of application is openedfiled, numbered, its contents noted, its receipts acknowledged, and a record taken of the same. In addition to these formal applications, upwards of two hundred letters per day are received at the office asking for information in regard to the application of the law, to which in many instances long and carefully prepared answers have to be

Porter and Greely.- A graphic sketch of William T. Porter, editor of the New York Spirit of the Times, is given by the Southern Military Gazette. The writer knew him whon foreman of a large printing office in New York, and in reference to that period savs :

The notablest thing that Bill did about those times, while he was a foreman aforesaid, was introducing into the office that ineffable genius Horace Greely, on his first arrival in the city, on the look out for a start in life, , just as uncouth-more uncouth the devil himself could not have made him, if he'd tried-as he is now, and a little greener looking. Well! that start he got, through Bill, on the strength of being a Vermonter; and on the strength of the start, and the Vermontship, they are two friends and cronies, in a certain sense, to this day. Nor do I know many funnier things, than to see them sitting check by lowling corner, discussing matters and things ; Grzely's shocking bad but, lank disordered, tow-colored locks, and ignoble countenance, half crazy, half cunning, and redeemed only by its singular earnestness his ragged white overcoat, hands ill-cared for and finger nails so deeply margined with sell that you might suppose that they had been performing the office of plowshares, contrasting wonderfully with the classic features, fine expression, soigne hair elaborate costume, and perfectly egentlemanly nir and finish of his brother editor and bre-

SPECULATION.—In a quiet little country town in this county, a gentleman who shad once: acted with a achood 'committee, but who had left to do business in another lace, returned un lown meeting day, and claimed the privilege of preparing the school committee's report. The committee consented. He rend a report, the principal portion of which was a discussion of the merits of Worcester and Webster's Distionary, and proved to his own satisfaction that Worcester's was the dictionary and that Webster's aught not to be used in the schools.
